Bobby Allison was named one of the 50 greatest all time stock car drivers, he was the 1983 Champion and won Daytona three times in 1979, 1982, & 1988.

During the course of his career, Bobby Allison accumulated 84 credited victories and 2 uncredited victories, making him fourth all-time, tied with Darrell Waltrip. In 1972, he was voted National Driver of the Year for winning ten races and taking 11 poles (including a record five straight) and again in 1983 when he claimed his only championship driving for DiGard racing.

Allison won the first race at Daytona run with restrictor plates in February 1988 by a car length over his son Davey Allison, rendering him the first driver to have won at Daytona with and without restrictor plates. He is the oldest driver to have won at Daytona.

Bobby Allison is one of only eight drivers to have won what was then considered a career Grand Slam (an unofficial term) by winning the sport's four majors..... Only seven other drivers have accomplished this feat.
